HORIZON launches New Android Mobile Application for Home Inspectors New Field Data Collection Tool reduces report writing time

Toronto (March 1, 2012) Carson Dunlop announced that their HORIZON Report Writing Software released a new Android Mobile application to help home inspectors collect data in the field. Horizon Mobile empowers home inspectors to easily record inspection results and photos with an Android smartphone or tablet.

Horizon Mobile allows home inspectors to work both online or offline, to easily select report items and add notes, and to take photos and drop them into exactly the right place in the report while in the field.

"Report writing has been taken to a new level since home inspectors can now use their smartphone to collect information and take photos whether they are on a roof, in an attic or a crawl space," commented Alan Carson, President of Carson Dunlop. "Horizon Mobile is game changer in the report writing industry with our no cost mobile application that makes field data collection easier than ever to help home inspectors write great reports in less time."

Kelley Fulton of Home Inspector North American Home Services in Sacramento, beta tested Horizon Mobile and commented "The new Horizon Mobile will have a real impact on the quality of life for every inspector, no matter where they live. Fathers will make it to ball games, school Christmas shows, even enjoy a vacation. No more 4am wake ups to write reports from the day before"
