Intelligent clothing for men

You don't have time to trawl the shops, flick through style magazines or surf endless pages on the web to keep your image up to date. So let the experts do the leg work while you get on with your day. No more wasted time, just intelligently collated collections from a honed selection of brands and great technology to help you browse them.

Style meets Science

Our BodyMap technology allows you to filter our store to find clothes that map your individual build, colour palette and style preference. Our systems do the hard work but it's not the computer dressing you. All the important calls are made by our in-house team of menswear buyers and style consultants, who individually examine all of our clothes to evaluate fit, style and colour profile. If you have any questions, you can give the team a call or drop them an email. Or just tell them the kind of thing you want and let them find it for you. And once you think you know what you want, you can try it on in our virtual dressing room and spec out an outfit on our photoreal outfit builder. StyleGun means no more guesswork.
