

MEDIA RELEASE

Carson Dunlop Expands Service to Collingwood and Surrounding Areas

Carson Dunlop forms new strategic relationship with Home Inspection by David

Toronto, (March 23, 2012) Carson Dunlop announced today the expansion of their home inspection products and services to include Collingwood and surrounding areas through a new strategic relationship with Home Inspection by David. The new relationship now provides an opportunity for Collingwood and area residents to take advantage of Carson Dunlop's comprehensive products, services and information through a highly qualified local home inspector.

David Leech is an engineer that has been active in the home inspection industry since 2003. David also designs heating and cooling systems, provides commercial building inspection services, WETT inspections for wood-burning heating systems, infrared inspection, and indoor air quality sampling. David provides services throughout Grey Bruce, Owen Sound, Georgian Triangle, Collingwood, Blue Mountain and the surrounding region. As part of this new strategic relationship, David has met Carson Dunlop's rigorous home inspection training and quality standards.

"We are very pleased to form this new strategic relationship with David Leech who shares our vision of providing high quality inspections and value-add to clients", commented Alan Carson, President of Carson Dunlop. "It is a real benefit to provide expanded coverage to our existing customers who are purchasing properties in this area and to share the many benefits we have created through our not-for-profit Homeowners Association with Collingwood and area residents."

"The addition of Carson Dunlop's products, services and information is a real win for my clients and real estate partners", commented David Leech of Home Inspection by David. "Providing clients with a free copy of the Home Reference Book, access to Carson Dunlop's Homeowners Association that includes a Home Warranty product and the wealth of information that Carson Dunlop has developed over the past 34 years will greatly benefit Collingwood and area residents."

Carson Dunlop's Homeowners Association is a not-for-profit organization. Home Inspection clients are automatically enrolled FREE of charge and receive several benefits including free technical advice for as long as they own their home, access to group savings on a variety of home related products and ongoing partnerships and programs that help their clients save time and money.

To learn more about Carson Dunlop, visit www.carsondunlop.com. To learn more about Home Inspection by David, visit www.homeinspectionbydavid.ca.

About Carson Dunlop

Carson, Dunlop & Associates Ltd. has been a leading Consulting Engineering Firm devoted to building inspections since 1978. They are one of the largest independent home inspection companies in North America that leverages their extensive technical knowledge across six integrated business lines - Home Inspection, Commercial Inspection, Report Writing, Energy Audits, Home Inspector Training and Continuing Education.

About Home Inspection by David

David Leech is an engineer that has been active in the home inspection industry since 2003. David also designs heating and cooling systems, provides commercial building inspection services, WETT inspections for wood-burning heating systems, infrared inspection, and indoor air quality sampling. David provides services throughout Grey Bruce, Owen Sound, Georgian Triangle, Collingwood, Blue Mountain and the surrounding region.