JEREMY JOHNSTON

Jeremy Johnston is managing editor of the Papers of William F. Cody. A graduate of the University of Wyoming with bachelor's and master's degrees in American history, Johnston taught a variety of history courses at Northwest College in Powell, Wyoming, including American history and the histories of Wyoming, Montana, Yellowstone National Park, North American Indians, and the American West.

CHRIS DIXON

Chris Dixon, senior research fellow in the Department of Modern Languages at the University of Strathclyde in Glasgow, Scotland, is a member of the United Kingdom's Chartered Institute of Linguists and holds two master's degrees from Glasgow University. Dixon recently edited Four Years in Europe with Buffalo Bill, a book by Charles Eldridge Griffin, originally published in 1908. His Buffalo Bill Historical Center presentation is titled "Fighting Scots in the Frontier Army."

JOHN YOUNG

Dr. John Young is senior lecturer at the Department of Modern Languages at the University of Strathclyde in Glasgow, Scotland. His interests include early modern Scotland, the pre-1707 Scottish Parliament, early modern Scotland and Ulster, and the Scottish Covenanters and the British Civil Wars/Wars for the Three Kingdoms. His topic for the Glen Saturday event is "The Scots and Scots-Irish in the Early Modern Trans-Atlantic World."

CURT DICAMILLO

Curt DiCamillo is an American architectural historian and a recognized authority on the British country house, writing and lecturing extensively in the U.S. and abroad on the subject. Since 1999, he has maintained an award-winning database on the Web, "The DiCamillo Companion to British & Irish Country Houses," DiCamilloCompanion.com. The database seeks to document every English, Scottish, Welsh, and Irish country house ever built, standing or demolished, together with a history of the families who lived in the houses, the architects who designed them, and the history of the collections and gardens.

Since 2004, DiCamillo has served as Executive Director of The National Trust for Scotland Foundation USA, based in Boston. Previously he worked for thirteen years for the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston and taught on the subject of British historic houses there.
