

Revolutionary Home Security Systems Package from Elite Security Services Allows Households without Basic Telephone to Enjoy World Class Home Protection.

The home security systems industry in Canada and America are abuzz with the introduction of the Elite package from Elite Security Services. This exceptional security package has been designed by the company to cater households that do not have a landline telephone connection. This package is now available throughout the United States and Canada for only $44.99 per month.

Landline telephones are no longer a basic requirement for enjoying the benefits of home security systems for the customers of Elite Security Services. The company has recently launched their Elite package just for households that have done away with landline telephones. This wondrous home protection package is now available for a monthly rental of $44.99 per month. It is worth mentioning that Elite Security Services is one of the latest entrants in the security industry that has made phenomenal progress over the last few months. They are now counted amongst the top security solution providers for residential use. The company has two more popular security packages to offer to their customers.

Traditional home security systems are completely dependent on landline telephones for the transmission of the signals to the monitoring centers. This is a serious drawback of traditional systems because the entire system becomes useless once the telephone lines are non functional. The miscreants these days are very well acquainted with the security systems, and they often cut the telephone line before breaking in to any house. Elite Security Services' Elite package is powered by the latest cellular technology that transmits signals using a technology that is similar to cell phones. Therefore, the landlines phones are not required, and these systems can operate with full functionality throughout the day.

Within no time, this security plan from Elite Security Services has managed to find a place amongst the most popular security packages in the industry. Camilla from Idaho has recently installed this home security systems package at her home. She describes her experience saying, "This system from Elite Security has actually exceeded my expectation. I am very happy because I know that I have got the best package in the market". The company sources have also revealed that their market presence has increased dramatically since the launch of this package.

About the Company: Elite Security Services is a rapidly growing company in the home security industry. They offer highly efficient and economical home security solutions in America and Canada.
