“We’re very pleased to provide travel healthcare professionals and clients with a new corporate Website that’s appropriately designed to support their business needs and provide a much-improved user experience,” said Steve Curtin, Director of Marketing for Cirrus Medical Staffing. “During the Website design process, we spent a significant amount of time speaking with travelers and analyzing Web data to help determine how our new site can meet traveler needs for customizable job searches as well as accommodate the increasing requirements to access the site’s functionality using mobile devices. The new Website introduces a more streamlined overall site presentation and easy-to-navigate user interface.”
