DOWNTOWN TULSA HOTEL OFFERS DELUXE FACILITIES FOR BUSINESS MEETINGS

Special deal can save CEOs or company owners stress, cash when booking in advance

Tulsa, OK. – It's not business as usual at the Hyatt Regency Tulsa.

That's what officials at the downtown Tulsa hotel want CEOs and company owners to know when they are in the market for a venue to host a conference, convention or retreat between October 2012 and February 2013.

With an emphasis on savings and adding value to its deluxe accommodations, the Tulsa hotel will offer businesses either double meeting planner points, an additional 10 percent commission, free Wi-Fi or 10 percent back when they book 50 or more group rooms.

This recently renovated hotel offers 38,000 square feet of flexible meeting space equipped with everything from pens and paper to easels, portable stages, podiums and lighting. State-of-the-art technology and 24/7 onsite professional services will ensure Power

Point presentations or webcasts come off without a hitch. The Hyatt Regency Tulsa meeting rooms can accommodate breakout groups of 25 people to banquets of 1,100 guests, and the in-house catering staff can serve up anything from a simple coffee or snack break to an elaborate themed gala.

After a long day of strategic planning, business professionals can retreat to one of 455 rooms with a Hyatt Grand Bed featuring fine fitted linens, a down blanket and plump pillows. Other room amenities include a 32-inch flat-screen TV, iHome stereo with iPod docking station, comfortable lounge chair and high-speed Internet access. Guests also can enjoy luxurious Portico bath amenities.

The facility also features a StayFit fitness center, on-site spa, 24-hour business center, Daily Grill restaurant and lounge, Topeca coffee shop and free shuttle services to and from the Tulsa airport.
