

YouTube Video Channel From Leading Home Security Systems Provider Launched to Educate Homeowners about Domestic Security.

Acclaimed home security systems manufacturer Elite Security Services has recently come up with their YouTube Channel. This initiative from the company is to enlighten the house owners around the world about the way a domestic protection system works. The launch of this channel has received an astounding response from home security enthusiasts.

Elite Security Services, a trusted dealer of home security systems in America and Canada, have recently introduced their YouTube video channel to promote security awareness amongst the house owners looking to build a safe home. The channel consists of several professionally created video guides that help the viewers understand how the home protection devices work, and ways to gain maximum benefits from them. Elite Security Services is one of the most trusted domestic protection companies in this region at the moment. Apart from providing economical home protection plans, the company has taken a leading role in creating security awareness through their blog, and YouTube channel.

The home security systems designed by the company conform to all the latest developments in the security industry. Their security plans comprise of highly efficient home protection devices like burglar alarm sirens, sensors, motion detectors, remote control, and many more. They presently offer three security plans for the customers starting from an incredible monthly fee of $35.99 only. They also have specially designed packages that can operate 24x7 without any telephone connection or power supply. Through the YouTube videos, the company owner, Mr. Paul Shakuri explains the intricate features of each of the advanced devices that form a modern day home protection system.

Mr. Paul Shakuri is a highly respected security expert and has made significant contributions to the industry since almost a decade. Talking about the objective of this video channel, Mr. Shakuri says, "Many home owners have no clue about these advanced devices and that is why they often fail to make optimum use of them. This video channel is just to help them understand the system better". He also added that new home security systems videos would be added regularly to this video channel. This initiative by Elite Security Services has been applauded by the people who want to know more about home protection.

About the Company: Elite Security Services is a rapidly growing company in the home security industry. They offer highly efficient and economical home security solutions in America and Canada.

Contact

Paul Shakuri

Phone: 800-599-8452.

Website: <http://www.YourAlarmNow.com>