

Elite Security Services Comes Up With Top of the Line Home Security Systems Plan for Residences Without Basic Telephone Line.

The residential property owners in Canada and America without a landline telephone can now enjoy the benefits of a highly sophisticated home security systems package. Elite Security Services has just launched their new home protection plan that can function even without a basic telephone line.

Well known American security company Elite Security Services has just come up with a new and advanced home security systems plan called the Elite package. The introduction of this package is great news for households that do not have any landline telephone connection. This new package is empowered by the latest technology that eliminates the requirements of basic phone lines. Elite Security Services has done exceedingly well to become a distinguished name in the security industry in Canada and the United States within just a few months in the market. With the introduction of the Elite Package, the company now has three excellent service packages for their customers.

For the traditional home security systems, landline telephone connections were mandatory. However, with recent technological developments in the industry, new avenues have been created for households that no longer use landline telephones. The system introduced by Elite Security Services uses digital cellular technology, a technology similar to that used in cell phones, to connect to the monitoring stations. The benefits of this package would be useful for the residences with a landline phone, too. The miscreants can deactivate the traditional systems simply by disconnecting the telephone lines. However, with the Elite Package from the company, their security systems would no longer be dependent on the landline phone.

The package has just hit the market and is available for a monthly rental of $44.95 per month only. Talking about this excellent package, the company's owner Mr. Paul Shakuri said, "Many households prefer not to use landline phones now. However, they also need to safeguard their house. This package is tailor made for those customers. The system can also be extremely handy even if you have a basic telephone". The introduction of this package is expected to receive very good response from the home security systems customers in this region.

About the Company: Elite Security Services is a rapidly growing company in the home security industry. They offer highly efficient and economical home security solutions in America and Canada.
