

Elite Security Services Announces the Launch of their Home Security Systems Blog to Create Mass Awareness.

Distinguished American home security systems specialists Elite Security Services have just launched the official blog of the company. The company blog will share vital safety tips with the readers to increase their awareness about building a safe home. Elite Security Services provides cost efficient residential protection plans in America and Canada.

An interactive blog dedicated to the importance of home security systems has been recently launched by well known domestic security company Elite Security Services. The company offers top class security service for the home owners throughout Canada and the United States. The company sources have informed the prime objective behind the launch of this blog is to create awareness about sound residential safety practices among the homeowners. It may be recalled that Elite Security Services has a YouTube video channel conveying similar message to the home owners. The blog would publish interesting safety tips in the form of articles written by the owner of the company Mr. Paul Shakuri.

Mr. Shakuri is a noted personality in the home security systems fraternity and believes in building a safe society without crime. He has been the main architect behind the creation of the blog of the company. Talking about his idea behind creating this blog, he says, "Following simple things in our daily life can make it much easier for us to build a safe home. With this blog, I am trying to share some of my own experience with the readers to help them". He also added that the readers would be able to ask questions relating to their security related concerns via this new blog.

Elite Security Services is known in America and Canada for their economical, yet technologically advanced security service. The home security systems plans from the company have made their way to a common man's life in this part of the world. They are an ADT approved dealer for providing home security service, and have recently achieved the Better Business Bureau accreditation with 'A' rating. The launch of the official blog of the company has been appreciated by the customers of the company and the security industry experts.

About the Company: Elite Security Services is a rapidly growing company in the home security industry. They offer highly efficient and economical home security solutions in America and Canada.

Contact

Paul Shakuri

Phone: 800-599-8452.

Website: <http://www.YourAlarmNow.com>