

THE U.S. TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT AGENCY PRESENTS

Kenya Airports Modernization Reverse Trade Mission

Indianapolis · Denver · Dallas/Fort Worth
May 7, 2012 – May 16, 2012

The Reverse Trade Mission and its included Business Briefing will highlight opportunities for U.S. firms to support several airport modernization projects planned by the Kenya Airports Authority (KAA).

The KAA plans a series of modernization and expansion efforts at airports across Kenya. These include a $100M upgrade of the existing terminals at Jomo Kenyatta International Airport (JKIA) and a planned new terminal build at JKIA, with an estimated project size of approximately $500M.

The U.S. Trade and Development Agency (USTDA) intends to invite up to twelve delegates from the Kenya Airports Authority and one representative from the the U.S. Commercial Service in Nairobi to participate in a Reverse Trade Mission (RTM) in May, 2012. As a part of the National Export Initiative (NEI), this visit will focus on familiarizing senior KAA officials with U.S. airport operations and modernization technologies, equipment, and best practices through site visits and meetings with public and private industry experts. The RTM will introduce the delegation to U.S. companies and service providers that can help the KAA in its airport modernization programs.

Potential U.S. Export Opportunities:

- Airport IT and Communications Systems
- Baggage Handling Systems
- Construction Planning and Design
- Facility Management Services
- Ground Support Equipment
- Passenger Loading Bridges
- Project Management Services
- Security Equipment
