

May 13, 2012

Newspapers, Magazines, Journalists,
GolfDigest, GolfWorld, Golf.com, GolfDigest.com

RE: Galley Chapters, “The Golf Courses of the British Isles”, 100th Anniversary Edition

Dear Editor/Reporter/Producer:

We are pleased to provide Chapters and paintings from Tri-Horn International’s 100th Anniversary color eBook of “The Golf Courses of the British Isles”*. (ISBN: 978-0-9792051-18). Contact us for Sample EPUB; or directly download at Apple’s iBookstore, Amazon.com or BN.com.

Beginning in 1909 Harry Rountree and Bernard Darwin began traveling the British Isles separately, (and at times together), building one of the unique literary & art collaborations in golfing history. Their book is an impressively wide survey of the courses and the game as it was played during this period “when the game was growing rapidly, both there and in the United States”, as Ben Crenshaw notes in his Foreword.

Crenshaw, 3-time NCAA golf champion, 2-time Masters Champion, noted golf historian and course architect has written the Foreword to this eBook. While he grew up in Texas, his talents and interests have taken him to the some of the remote and historic courses of the world. He currently plays on the Senior Tour and is a sought-after designer of golf courses with Coore, Crenshaw & Associates. Ben is Toastmaster at the yearly Master’s Champions Dinner.

“The Golf Courses of the British Isles” will be published in May 2012. It is currently available on the iPad, KindleFire and Nook Readers; as well as all iPhone, Android and Windows 8 devices through Apple, Amazon and Barnes & Noble.

Please see Press Release and Sample Galley Chapters for details. (Note: Harry Rountree’s paintings display crisper and more vibrantly on Color eReader at “Medium Brightness”.) For further information contact 617.697.3700.