ReVision Theatre Announces New Venue and Season Kick-off

In its tradition of providing professional entertainment in unique venues, ReVision Theatre is proud to announce that it will be moving to 700 Grand Avenue, Asbury Park, the former site of the St. George Greek Orthodox Church for our 2012 5th Anniversary Season.

The St. George Church was built in 1949 by the Greek Orthodox community of Asbury Park after celebrating their liturgy in the Asbury Park Library basement for 20 years prior. The Greek Orthodox community grew so much in the past 60 years and on April 1, 2012, the St. George Church community moved to their new church and facilities in Ocean Township, leaving the historic building vacant. Now the former church, a year round venue with ventilation, rest rooms and other amenities, will be home to ReVision Theatre, providing fans with another season of music and drama presented in the Company's own unique way.

Our transition from the Carousel House is bitter-sweet. We owe much of our past success to Madison Marquette, the owner of the Carousel House, for all of their help and support over the years. The Carousel House is a hip place and rich in history. The door is still open for future productions at that venue and Madison Marquette continues to be our partner in the arts.

"The Saint George is magnificent," Artistic Director, Bob Angelini beamed. "I'm sure our theatre patrons will be very happy with the history, ambience and comforts of our new location. The "Theatre at St. George" will be a great new venue. We are grateful to the St. George Church community for investing in ReVision Theatre."

Angelini, who co-directed ReVision's sold-out holiday show, A Christmas Survival Guide, and oversees the monthly Cabaret series, will direct the 2012 season. The 5th anniversary season will take place on the main stage at the "Theatre at St. George" as well as other partner venues throughout Asbury Park, including the Paramount Theatre.

It is now time to renew or initiate a membership for our 5th Anniversary Season. ReVision Theatre will be hosting a members and sponsors Season Kickoff Party on Thursday June 14th at St. George Church at 7:30 PM where we will unveil our new season which includes a 5th anniversary retrospective concert, a musical and for the first time in our history in Asbury Park, a play. We will continue our monthly Cabarets as well as our Readings from Asbury Park throughout 2012. On June 14th, ReVision Theatre will begin selling season subscriptions at a members-only discount price. Admission for the Season Kickoff Party is free for members, donors and sponsors. Please join us and get the first peek at the Company's new and exciting venue. To obtain a membership please visit our website www.revisiontheatre.org or call us at (732) 455-3059.
