

GRILLING COMPANION

Grilling Companion is the online grilling and barbecue magazine that was born from a desire to combine the love of technology and the love of outdoor cooking. Two guys that are self-proclaimed technology and food geeks have brought their passions together to bring you recipes, news and tips about everything related to outdoor cooking, delivered to you via the web and your mobile device.

Tom Setzer

While Tom is a software engineer by training, he performs duties of executive chef in his house at night. Born in Connecticut, Tom now lives in Tampa, Florida, with his wonderful wife and two boys. Having traveled throughout the world, he has experienced a variety of cultures and foods and given the choice of destinations, he usually selects a location where food is the focus of the trip. From Chicago hot dogs under the ‘L’ to North Carolina pulled pork to fresh crêpes on the streets of Paris, Tom has tasted all that came across his plate. He has also taken numerous cooking courses and classes, where he found his love of outdoor cooking – relaxing over a hot grill and a cold beer with friends and family.

Steve Wilson

Steve is a husband and father who often smells of smoke and owns very few shirts without stains. Steve grew up in the Tampa Bay area and graduated from the University of South Florida. If you don't see him spending time at home with his awesome wife and two sons, he is probably out on the water somewhere, coaching his son's baseball team or tailgating. Steve is the youngest of three boys so he had to eat whatever was put in front of him – which explains why he is into all kinds of food. He likes to grill or smoke pretty much anything and everything and is fortunate to have a family that is patient enough to wait ten minutes before each dinner so he can take photos of the meal.