

Social Media Network for the Entertainment Industry Has Arrived

Film, Musicians, Directors, Screenwriters, Managers, Agencies, Actors, Venues, Magazines, Stylists, Cinematographer, Exclusive Industry Network

New York, NY (Press Release) July 2, 2012

The Entertainment industry finally can say they even have their own social network. Connectshot hit the worldwide web with a social community strictly for the entertainment biz. Actors, musicians, directors, screenwriters and more can join this network and make connections for creating work and contacts to further their careers. For years now, celebs have been mixing it up with fans far and wide and getting bombarded with countless harassing emails and some very intimidating followers. This seems to be what is wrong with social media and how many feel that everyone should not be able to join if it's not for business purposes. If you are an actor, musician, author, director, screen writer, agency, manager, publicist or other profession, your elite social experience has arrived!

However, the coolness does not stop there, Connectshot is run by industry veterans that will even help up and coming actors, musicians, authors and more get noticed and establish record contracts, book deals and get movie auditions. The website comes with up to date casting calls, red carpet events, entertainment jobs and more. Want to check out the latest music videos, movie trailers and the hottest songs on the charts? Well the social network comes with that too. This Social community is not entirely free; there is a small monthly charge of $4.95. It seems to be a small price to pay for all these great opportunities. Most internet movie and music companies charge more for much less and are not a social community to boot. The fee seems to be able to keep this society of entertainment go getters exclusive. Thousands of members are already signed up. Don't miss out, sign up today. I say simply "It's about time." Ray Thompson, Entertainment Media, Inc.
