

Permaculture Design

Certificate Course

July 30 - August 10

with Jenny Pell, Adam Rawson & Steve Nicolini

Receive a Permaculture Design Certificate, an internationally-recognized credential for sustainability consulting.

Gain knowledge and skills needed to design and implement permaculture principles and practices to both rural and urban settings.

Learn from classroom instruction and hands on projects on the Alderleaf farm and in the forest.

Discover how to plan food forests, organic gardening, natural building, renewable energy systems, animal husbandry and learn about mushroom foraging, wild edible plants, ecology and much more!

Jenny Pell, renowned permaculture designer, is noted for her work on the Seattle Beacon Hill Food Forest. Adam Rawson is an accomplished permaculture consultant and landscape designer. Steve Nicolini is an experienced wilderness skills instructor, wildlife tracker and permaculturist.

“This life-changing course has top instructors in the region and an amazing group of students. I came away with a profound toolkit on how to truly live sustainably.”

Ben Kaufman, 2011 participant

Location: The beautiful 15 acre Alderleaf campus, just a little over an hour drive outside Seattle:
18715 299th Ave SE, Monroe, WA 98272

Accommodations: Free tent or car camping available on site with access to running water, fire pit and bathroom. Local hotel information is available on our website.

Cost & Discounts: $1500 per person. Pre-registration required online or by phone. Receive a 10% discount when you sign up for the Self-Sufficiency Series or if you register with a friend or family member. Space is limited.

360.793.8709 . www.WildernessCollege.com