

Doing Ecommerce Online Just Got Easier with 1AutomationWiz.com

Ecommerce shopping cart automation provider, 1AutomationWiz.com targets July 18th, for the much anticipated release of its revamped UI (user interface) and ecommerce dashboard to all customers

The all new 1AutomationWiz UI (user interface) and ecommerce dashboard brings an all new user experience to all its customers, making it both easier and faster to navigate the 1AutomationWiz ecommerce software.

This new UI aims to provide a modern, clean look and feel to the back office of the user control panel, combined with a new dashboard that provides quick access to the most common actions and information sought by merchants when logging into their accounts.

"Changes in the control panel menu structure are minimal to ensure that existing customers have no issues finding the ecommerce tools and information they want, without having to find these items in new places within the menu," says Don Schnure, President of 1AutomationWiz.com

1AutomationWiz also announced that later in July it will release even more navigational improvements and ecommerce features to the UI in order to continue to optimize and streamline its user interface in order to provide a better overall customer experience for its ecommerce shopping cart software and email marketing subscribers.
