

iSteroids to become more user-friendly

July 20, 2012

We would like to inform all our visitors, partners and friends that our site, isteroids.com won't be accessible for some time (around 2-3 hours each day at night time) because new content is being uploaded to make the website more user-friendly. Owing to the popularity of the site and growing demand of its visitors, the management decided to incorporate certain features which would increase the interactivity of the site. We have been getting many suggestions and feedbacks from our visitors to come up with attributes that make the interface of iSteroids simpler and more communicative.

A special team of skilled personnel was then established to create qualitative tools that will put iSteroids on a better level of user-experience. We are also engaged in creating a unique database for our readers which will make their access to information more interesting and precise. There are many people who seek specific information on selective subjects rather than generic content on steroids. Our new database will cater to the needs and demands of all our readers in a more innovative manner.

Until we bring to you our updated version, we request all our visitors support us in making our endeavor a success! We extend our sincere gratitude to everyone for supporting our services. We also extend our apologies for the time being taken for the upgrade of our website!