

Turquoise Jewelry Collection Expanded at SilverTribe

Turquoise jewelry is a hotter than ever this summer and SilverTribe, the leading online retailer of Native American Jewelry, is expanding its impressive collection to meet demand.

SilverTribe, the online leader in Native American jewelry, is expanding its growing collection of turquoise jewelry to meet increasing demand for this hot summer fashion.

Customers will find a huge selection at low prices with free shipping to all U.S. addresses.

“We’re expanding our selection across the board,” said SilverTribe Spokesman Chris Anderson. “Our turquoise rings are among the most popular items this summer and we want to make sure there are plenty in stock.”

SilverTribe works with the most talented artists in the industry to offer the highest-quality American Indian jewelry on the market.

“Signing up for our Preferred Member email list is the best way to stay up-to-date on the latest products coming in,” Anderson said. “Our members also receive exclusive offers and discounts on our entire catalog.”

Tribes of the Southwest are known around the world for producing the finest turquoise jewelry on the market. The Zuni tribe favors the inlay technique, where stones are expertly carved and placed in a sterling silver setting.

The Navajo tribe uses larger stone centerpieces, highlighting the look of turquoise in its natural form. A Navajo pendant will add new life to summer attire with exquisite silverwork and carefully selected stones.

SilverTribe offers Native American jewelry to match any budget or style. From simple and elegant designs to extravagant handcrafted pieces, there’s something for everyone.

“We’re very proud of our entire collection of American Indian jewelry and art,” Anderson said. “Don’t let summer pass you by without dropping by SilverTribe for a true taste of Southwest fashion.”

The stones used in Native American jewelry are considered sacred to many tribes and cultures around the world. It’s beautiful shades of blue and green are unmistakable and sure to add new dimension to any wardrobe.
