To formulate the system, creators interviewed and compiled research from top doctors and researchers in the medical community. Many of those experts are even involved with the program, teaching classes and appearing in exclusive interview offered to Future of Health Now members.

"Whether you want to know more about fat loss, or how to prevent Alzheimer's, this seems to be a popular choice for people who want real information about their health," said AloeVera editor Ben Danson. "We wanted to review this product based on the high level of research behind it and the fact that that research was compiled by leaders in the industry."
