Commonwealth Legal becomes a Relativity Consulting Partner

TORONTO, ON, CANADA – August 1, 2012 – COMMONWEALTH LEGAL, Canada's leading web-hosting service provider for evidence management, announced that they are now a Relativity Consulting Partner with kCura—developers of the powerful ediscovery software. As a Consulting Partner, Commonwealth Legal is able to advise and support clients to successfully manage large scale document review projects using Relativity.

"After performing an in-depth evaluation of Relativity to verify its performance and alignment to the needs of the Canadian legal market, we are very excited to incorporate Relativity into our comprehensive range of eDiscovery services," said Jennifer Johnson, Vice President of Professional Services at Commonwealth Legal. "Our customers will now have access to one of the most sophisticated online document review technologies available today, while being supported by our professional services team – the largest and most experienced in Canada."

Relativity is a feature-rich, web-based document review application that gives legal teams the ability to securely manage evidentiary documents and electronically stored information. Relativity allows users to create and automate custom review workflows, reduce the time and cost of review with text analytics capabilities including Relativity Assisted Review, and build applications within the software to manage and search case-related data and information. Relativity also scales to help legal teams deal with large and complex datasets.

"We are pleased to welcome Commonwealth Legal as a Relativity Consulting Partner," said Andrew Sieja, president and CEO of kCura. "We look forward to working with their team to meet the needs of the Canadian legal market."

Relativity is available in Canada through Commonwealth Legal as a web-hosted managed services offering and can be purchased on a short or long-term subscription basis. It will be hosted and managed within a highly-secure Canadian IT infrastructure.
