

West Hills Community College District Selects and Implements Edvance360 LMS-SN

West Hills Community College District (WHCCD) in California migrates from Blackboard™ to Edvance360 LMS-SN™.

(Virginia Beach, VA) Edvance360, a leading provider of eLearning services and software solutions, announced that West Hills Community College (WHCCD) left Blackboard™ to join the growing Edvance360 LMS-SN community of users.

“The student satisfaction rate is steadily improving as we move from the spring 2012 implementation into the summer and fall semesters. Sixty percent of students expressed satisfaction in the spring 2012 semester, improving to 70 percent in the summer semester. At this rate, we will have nearly 100 percent student satisfaction at the end of the first year.

The experience in receiving support from Edvance360 is a completely different from our previous experience. We have incredible access at all levels of the Edvance360 organizational structure, which has resulted in an amazingly successful implementation and integration of this new learning management system.”

- Lenore Simonson, Educational Technology Specialist at West Hills Community College District

About West Hills Community College District

Started in the 1930's as an extension of Fresno State University, Coalinga College, now West Hills College Coalinga, was one of the first community colleges in the nation to offer an AA degree entirely online. It was joined in 2002 with a history-making, 21st-Century campus called West Hills College Lemoore. Additionally, a North District Center, Firebaugh, offers a model of service for small, rural communities that allows residents to earn an AA degree close to home and Naval Air Station, Lemoore center serves sailors and marines as they serve their country.

In 2002 the MetLife Foundation selected West Hills Community College District as the small community college nationwide that best serves the needs of a diverse student population.

Their website can be accessed at www.whccd.edu.
