PERMANENT RESIDENCE FOR PTS

Singapore has been keeping an open door immigration policy to attract foreign talent and to maintain a healthy population growth. The driving factor has always been an economic one. The low birth rate and the need to improve human capital in Singapore have been the two main impetuses that led to the escalation in Singapore's population growth in the last two decades. Foreign talent is an invaluable asset to a competitive economy. Singapore has made a concerted effort in courting and retaining foreign talent through various schemes including the benefit of permanent residence status.

There are four schemes through which a foreigner can apply for Singapore PR status- namely the Professional/ Technical Personnel and Skilled Workers Scheme (PTS), Scheme for Investors, Scheme for Foreign Artistic Talent and lastly a Landed PR for the super qualified individuals with exemplary qualifications.

A significant majority of the PR applications are made under the PTS scheme, which is the most certain route to obtain PR. Invariably the immigrants working here, aspire to make Singapore their second home, thus they become eligible under the scheme accounting for the popularity of the scheme. The selection process however has remained strict and the recent developments have made it more stringent.

A prospective applicant under the PTS scheme must be a holder of P, Q or S type pass and should not be more than 60 years of age. Applicant's family, that is, spouse and unmarried children under 21 years of age, can also be included in the application. The chances of approval are higher for applicants who have stayed in Singapore for at least two years consecutively and have remained gainfully employed during the period.

Applicants must have a clean chit of conduct and must possess impressive educational qualifications or command proficiency in skills that are in demand. The value addition that an applicant will bring to the country, family ties in Singapore, salary, financial standing, consistency of employment are some of the factors that will be considered closely.

Prospective applicants must take note of the commitments that come along with the PR status. Male children who are granted PR along with the main applicant must register for National Service upon reaching the age of 16½ years. They will be enlisted for a two year fulltime NS upon reaching 18 years of age and thereafter will be required to serve 40 days of Operationally Ready NS every year, until they are 50 years of age or 40 years in the case of non-officers.

It is recommended to wait for at least twelve months after you have started working in Singapore before applying for permanent residence with Immigration and Checkpoints Authority of Singapore (ICA).
