Top Web Hosting Tips from Popular Online Business Coach Now Available Free of Charge

Mike Bashi, a noted online entrepreneur and trainer, have launched a new website offering detailed guidelines on all web hosting related requirements. This website offers a free to access video tutorial that shares the findings of comprehensive research conducted on all hosting service providers by Mr. Bashi and his team of experts. It also provides surefire tips for efficient management of a website hosting account.

Aspiring business owners looking for a trustworthy web hosting company can now avail all necessary information from Hostmonopoly.com, a review and training website from popular business trainer Mike Bashi. This website has been introduced by Mr. Bashi after conducting a thorough review of hundreds of hosting service providers. Through this website, business owners can learn how to successfully set up and run their website hosting account. The highlight of Hostmonopoly is a free training video that is one of the most comprehensive tutorials ever created on this subject. Mike Bashi is a highly admired personality in the online marketing fraternity with a wealth of experience behind him.

Finding a good web hosting company is one of the most preliminary requirements to start a business. However, many new business owners waste lots of time and money by signing up with the wrong service provider. Mike Bashi's way of evaluation of a hosting company starts by short listing those offering server reliability, quality, round the clock support, 4th generation hosting, and unlimited domains and bandwidth. Then he purchases hosting packages from all these short listed companies and tests them for minimum one month by uploading a Wordpress website. Adequate visitors are sent to the website, and the traffic is closely monitored.

Based on the findings of his research, Mr. Bashi is using one web hosting company for last four years with great results. The visitors to Hostmonopoly can find out the name of that company and its specialties from the training video that can be accessed only by providing a valid email address. Describing his new website, Mr. Bashi says, "Hostmonopoly has been created after reviewing all website hosting companies that are operating presently in the market. You no longer need to spend hours in research before choosing the right one because we have done it for you".

About Hostmonopoly.com: Hostmonopoly.com is a review website launched by noted business consultant Michael Bashi. This website helps entrepreneurs find out the best web hosting service provider with a comprehensive, free training video.
