Frisco, Texas – Aug. 29, 2012 – Corepoint Health, producer of the #1 in KLAS Corepoint Integration Engine, will host Corepoint Connect 2012, its annual user group conference, October 3-5, 2012, in Plano, Texas.

Corepoint Connect 2012 will be held at the Marriott at Legacy Town Center, located at The Shops at Legacy shopping and entertainment area, and will include formal training sessions on Corepoint Integration Engine and relevant healthcare integration topics, as well as collaborative sessions in which attendees can share their expertise with other Corepoint Health customers.

Sonal Patel, Vice President of Client Services at Corepoint Health, said the conference will be a great opportunity for Corepoint Health customers to meet in person and build professional connections that can help them continue to excel in achieving their health IT goals.

“We’re really looking forward to the opportunity to continue the valuable user community conversations in person,” Patel said. “In fact, a majority of the educational sessions offered at Corepoint Connect 2012 were inspired by social conversations in our online community. Having the opportunity to meet as a large group will help our customers better leverage their integrated health IT environment and will also help us determine which features to incorporate into future versions of Corepoint Integration Engine.”

The Corepoint Health User Group consists of customers and Corepoint Health interoperability experts who share advice and ask specific questions about Corepoint Integration Engine and health IT topics.

“Developing trust and building a strong partnership with our customers are the cornerstones of Corepoint Health’s philosophy of customer service,” said Corepoint Health CEO Phil Guy. “Everyone in our organization is looking forward to another opportunity to listen closely to the customers who are attending so we can find additional ways to collaborate and solve future challenges.”

Registration for Corepoint Connect 2012 is available to Corepoint Health customers only. Customers from across the country have already registered to ensure they secure a room in the Corepoint Health hotel block at the Marriott at Legacy Town Center. The deadline to register is Sept. 19.
