

Turquoise jewelry and other American Indian fashions are being offered at discounted prices to honor the artistry and heritage of the tribes that inspire SilverTribe.com's collection of Southwest jewelry and art.

"We want everyone to have a chance to purchase and appreciate a beautiful piece of the Southwest," said Chris Anderson, a spokesman for SilverTribe.com. "By offering beautiful examples of Navajo and Zuni jewelry at a discounted price, we hope to provide pieces to suit any budget."

As a leading online retailer, SilverTribe offers free shipping on all orders to U.S. addresses and fast, responsive customer service. Customers can feel confident in ordering an authentic piece of Native American jewelry designed by the Navajo, Hopi or Zuni tribes.

Visitors will find a huge collection of turquoise bracelets, squash blossom necklaces and pendants at discounted prices, for the best deal the web has to offer. The most sought after styles are available year-round at SilverTribe.

"At SilverTribe, our goal is to make every customer happy and provide something for everyone," Anderson said. "Whether it's a understated and elegant selection, or something complex and extravagant for formal occasions, we have options to suit any style."

SilverTribe attracts visitors seeking both traditional and modern designs that reflect the rich heritage and artistic skill of American Indian artists. For more than a decade, the retailer has been a trusted source of Native American jewelry and art, including conch belts, Hopi kachinas and multicolor jewelry.

SilverTribe will continue to offer the most popular modern and traditional styles at a discounted price with free shipping throughout the season. Visitors will find plenty to choose from at prices well below the industry average.

Those interested in learning more about the varieties of Native American jewelry sold at SilverTribe is encouraged to visit the official website at <http://www.silvertribe.com>.