

FALL | WINTER 2012 WOMEN'S COLLECTION

For Fall 2012, MPG has updated our color blocking story to include hi-pop, contrast tones such as diva pink, cobalt and palm green, the first of which the brand was at the forefront of adopting for the season before being followed by other activewear labels. Because the color blocking trend has remained consistently strong over the past several seasons, MPG has endeavored to provide fresh and new permutations thereof to remain a brand leader while hewing to prevalent styling tendencies.

Previously embarking upon animal-themed treatments in pique, MPG has explored animal prints for Fall 2012, continuing to draw inspiration from the runways of the fashion capitals of the world. Highly anticipated, our animal print treatments, specifically python, have been executed in heather charcoal to create darker tones indicative of the season. Classic stand-bys such as the Avert tight, which has remained a perennial favorite, receive an exciting and exotic update in python print. In a concerted effort to not limit itself to prints, MPG has also created python burnout pieces, in fresh tones, that are predominantly found on lifestyle pieces.

Speaking of lifestyle, styling has been imbued with a decidedly retro, 80s tinge in such pieces such as Lina, which is an updated version of the previous season's wildly popular Bolero top while an exciting new fabric texture, shadow stripe, has been introduced to create visually captivating treatments in our stretch woven fabrication. Ruching elements in the shadow stripe capsule ensure femininity and a touch of playfulness while also adhering to standards of functionality.

To capture the resurgent popularity of cotton in the activewear market segment, MPG has introduced heavier weight fleece pieces in fashionable applications that still retain active details such as high gloss accent zippers. The result is highly versatile garments that can easily transition from active to lifestyle settings.

Rounding out the collection, outerwear continues to reflect prevalent silhouettes to become even more sleek, slim and tailored in lightweight and chic fabrics and textures.

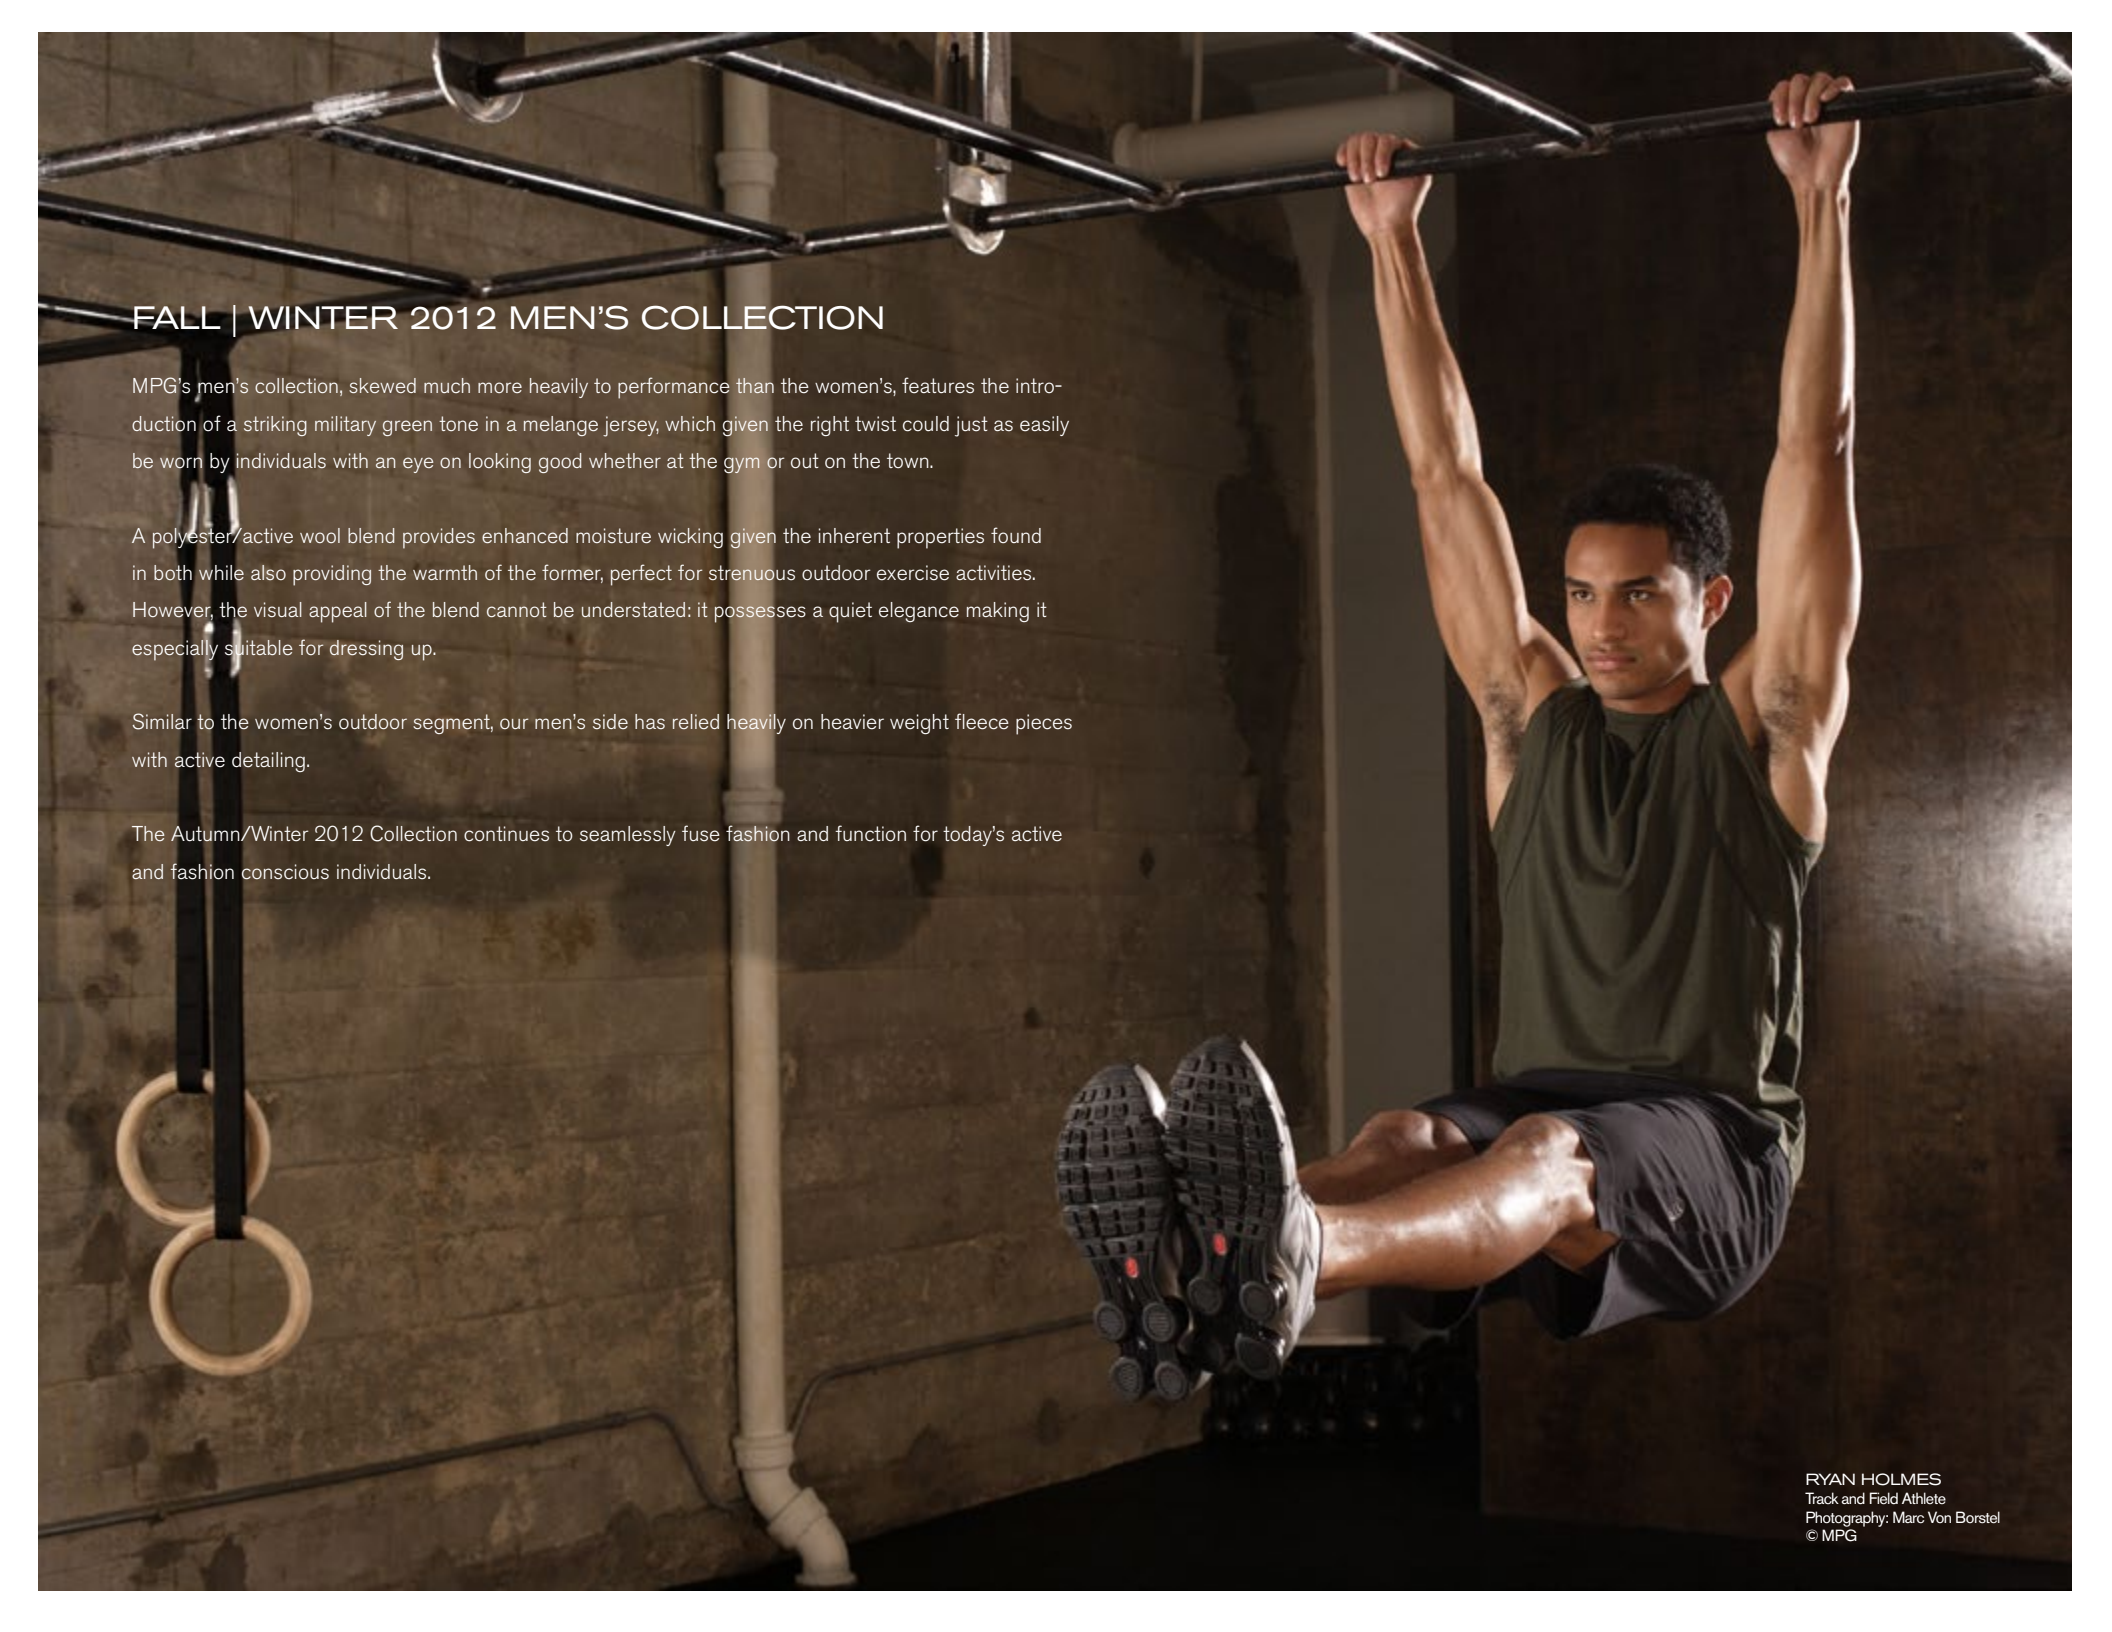

ACCESSORIES

For Fall 2012, MPG has drastically increased its offerings in the accessories category by including impeccably fitting seamless underwear; fitness mat, ball and mat straps; dramatically updated bags to reflect European fashion house must-have pieces; and headbands and hair ties. The brand's deeper foray into accessories speaks to its commitment to create an entire MPG experience for today's fashionable and active individuals.

A man with a muscular build is performing a pull-up on a black metal bar in a gym. He is wearing a dark green sleeveless shirt and dark shorts. His feet are resting on a black platform. The background shows a brick wall and a white pipe. To the left, there are wooden gymnastic rings hanging from a bar.

MPG's men's collection, skewed much more heavily to performance than the women's, features the introduction of a striking military green tone in a melange jersey, which given the right twist could just as easily be worn by individuals with an eye on looking good whether at the gym or out on the town.

A polyester/active wool blend provides enhanced moisture wicking given the inherent properties found in both while also providing the warmth of the former, perfect for strenuous outdoor exercise activities. However, the visual appeal of the blend cannot be understated: it possesses a quiet elegance making it especially suitable for dressing up.

Similar to the women's outdoor segment, our men's side has relied heavily on heavier weight fleece pieces with active detailing.

The Autumn/Winter 2012 Collection continues to seamlessly fuse fashion and function for today's active and fashion conscious individuals.

THE HISTORY OF MPG®

The Mondetta brand strives to bring nations and people together.

The name, Mondetta, is synonymous with harmony and diversity: 'Monde' is French for 'world' and the Latin suffix 'etta' means 'small' – thus, 'small world'. Founded nearly twenty-five years ago by four young men, some of them teenagers, while they were still in high school and university, the Mondetta brand has evolved – first introduced as an icon of global unification, it's now an established collection of ever-evolving casual wear, outerwear and specialized niche apparel.

Mondetta Performance Gear, MPG, continued the Mondetta brand's tradition of always evolving by taking its Mondetta Sport line one step further to create a line of clothing that could both meet the demands of athletes while still adhering to the company's core principles of fashion forward styling. The result was an activewear collection with a distinctly unique twist: cutting-edge designs and styles were accentuated with active details such as stretchability, moisture wicking and breathability to strike a perfect balance between form and function.

Ash Modha, CEO and Head Designer, gleaned much of the initial inspiration for MPG from his wife, a ballet dancer, and her friends' desire for activewear that performed well but didn't sacrifice comfort. The dancers became their focus group, test market and because of their heavy involvement in the arts, could be trusted for their aesthetic sensibilities. MPG has continued to use dancers, instead of models, in nearly every photo shoot since its inception.

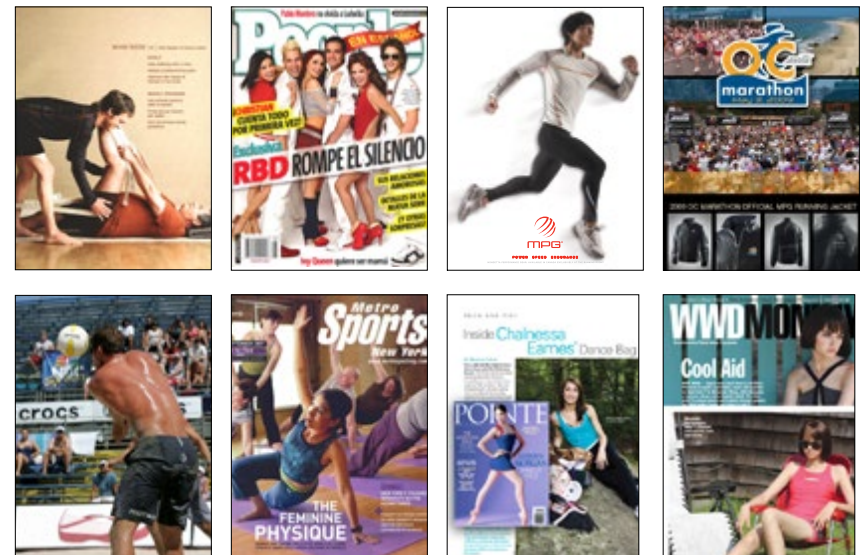

In recent years, as yoga and active lifestyle apparel has grown in popularity, MPG has enjoyed burgeoning growth at break-neck speeds. The brand has continued to make waves right across North America and has explosive growth every year while simultaneously increasing its presence through media channels. MPG's focus will always remain on the athletes, dancers and various individuals continually striving and toiling in a never ending pursuit of excellence.

THE VISION

Truly powerful action is the result of an equally passionate vision and drive to achieve. Behind the energy for perfection surges the will to attain it. In recognizing this balance, MPG has developed a line of clothing that seamlessly blends fashion and function, design and performance. The results are richly detailed pieces with a technical edge – an entire collection unparalleled in conception and construction.

MPG, inspired by the smooth, strong movements of performers such as athletes and dancers, celebrates the drive, dedication and perseverance of these phenomenal individuals. MPG applauds their unyielding pursuit of excellence, through sacrifice and discipline, with respect and admiration. The brand's versatility allows for more than just function; it embodies style and comfort by offering a range of clothing to suit any activity in any environment, at the apex of vision and vigor.

In our drive to develop the ultimate active apparel, we have achieved garments that feel and look so great you will want to wear them everyday.

Mondetta Performance Gear Introduces New Line with Help from Pro Dancers

New York, NY—Mondetta Performance Gear has enlisted Stella Abbrera and Sascha Radetsky of American Ballet Theatre, Lesley Rausch of Pacific Northwest Ballet and hip-hop dancer Bijoya “BJ” Das to help promote its Spring/Summer 2012 collection. This year marks the first time MPG has signed a hip-hop dancer to endorse its gear. The models will be featured in MPG’s advertising campaigns and in promotional materials that the company will provide to retailers.

Sascha Radetsky models capri pants from MPG’S Spring/Summer 2012 collection.

MPG’s latest collection of dance, fitness and lifestyle apparel reflects recent runway trends such as color blocking, which flatters a variety of body types. “We’ve always trusted fashion-forward styling, marrying it with the technical aspects of four-way stretch, moisture wicking, breathability and quick-drying fabric,” says Anand Modha, who does PR and marketing for MPG.

The women’s line includes a range of sports bras, tanks, T-shirts, shorts, capris and leggings made of high-gloss performance jersey. This season’s offerings feature a heather gray base with accent colors that include turquoise, purple and persimmon. For men, the company is adding capri-length pants to its lineup of shorts, long pants, tanks and T-shirts. Key colors in the men’s collection include blue, lime green, charcoal and heather gray.

MONDETTA CHARITY FOUNDATION

Raising awareness
by remembering the past

ABOUT THE MCF

The Mondetta Charity Foundation (MCF), a completely separate entity from the Mondetta Clothing Company, has been established to provide assistance to ease some of the suffering in Africa due to devastating problems such as AIDS and the ravages of poverty.

Four principles of the Mondetta Clothing Company were born in Uganda and Kenya and have deep-seated emotional ties and a strong allegiance to the African Continent. While the problem of AIDS remains enormous, MCF aims to tackle the hardships of life in these regions by taking action where it counts.

THE PEOPLE

Nearly forty years ago, two families left East Africa as both immigrants and refugees to eventually find their way to Winnipeg, Manitoba where they began to rebuild their lives and establish new roots.

In 1970, Raj Bahl, VP Sales, immigrated to Canada from Nairobi, Kenya, at the young age of three, along with his parents and siblings. Though recollections of his experiences in Kenya are blurred and clouded by the passage of time, his memories are kept alive through the stories told to him by his parents and various family friends who shared a similar experience.

In 1972, under the dictatorial rule of President Idi Amin, Ugandan citizens of Asian descent were forcibly expelled from the country, given 90 days notice to leave the only home they had ever known. The Modha family, including Ash, President and CEO, Prashant, VP Finance, and Kish, VP Administration, was one of thousands of families to leave the part of Africa known as the "Cradle of the Nile" and forge new roots in foreign lands.

THE SUPPORT

The Mondetta Charity Foundation was founded with compassion and hope to raise awareness of the daily and lifelong struggles young children face against the AIDS epidemic in Africa. Unable and unwilling to stand by and watch as thousands of young children succumb to the ravages of the AIDS epidemic that has devastated so much of the continent, the Mondetta Clothing Company has joined the efforts of individuals and organizations such as Bono, lead singer of rock group U2, Stephen Lewis, UN Special Envoy for AIDS in Africa, and The Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation.

To date, MCF has adopted the New Life Home orphanage in Nairobi, Kenya and the Kamwokya Primary School in Kampala, Uganda. By supporting these two facilities directly, children left without homes or living with HIV/AIDS have access to the security, education and medical attention they need and deserve.

MPG® proudly features the MPG® Gives Back program. This benefit speaks of Going Forward by Giving Back, as 1% of annual gross revenue from this clothing line is pledged to the MCF.

The Mondetta Charity Foundation was created on the mandate that all operating and administrative costs would be born by the parent company thereby allowing all donations to be utilized in a strictly charitable capacity.
