ActSeed Partners with CrowdFund Bootcamp to Help Entrepreneurs Prepare for JOBS Act Investment

Capital-starved entrepreneurs eagerly await the dawn of a new capital market called crowdfunding. ActSeed is glad to support the CrowdFund Bootcamp and its mission to prepare entrepreneurs for the opportunity to tap this major new vein of investor capital.

Orlando, FL (September 6, 2012) – ActSeed has teamed up with Crowdfund Bootcamp and the CrowdFunding Professional Association (CfPA) to help entrepreneurs understand the complexities of pursuing equity investment through the JOBS Act Crowdfunding process.

On April 5, 2012, the "Jumpstart Our Business Startups Act" or "JOBS Act" became law. A new game in the world of early stage business funding was created. This legislation now calls for the US Securities and Exchange Commission to define the rules of this new game. It's expected that the rules will be in place sometime next year and entrepreneurs can begin pursuing crowdfunding equity investments.

"The passage of the JOBS Act and the legalization of debt and equity based crowdfunding is a very exciting proposition," said Ruth Hedges, Founding Board Member and Executive Committee Member of the CrowdFunding Professional Association (CfPA). "The community can now open their arms and wallets to give startups the funds needed to thrive and investors a chance to profit. Unfortunately, what many entrepreneurs don't realize is that equity-based crowdfunding is more complicated than donation-based campaigns. It is not as simple as setting up a deal room on Kickstarter and emailing your network."

"The early bird gets the worm and the second mouse gets the cheese, but nobody has a saying for the ones who arrive beyond that," said Bill Attinger, CEO of ActSeed. "Equity-based crowdfunding is coming soon, and entrepreneurs who want to tap this new capital market will start preparing now."
