Unlike most other web hosting review websites, Hostmonopoly.com is highly trustworthy because the reviews have been conducted by the creator of the website. Mr. Bashi purchased hosting accounts with all service providers and tested them by uploading a site. Sufficient amount of visitors were also sent. After thorough monitoring of traffic and several other factors, he has been able to find the website host that provides maximum performance. Every online business owner can now stop wasting time changing hosting companies frequently and sign up for the free video tutorial by providing a valid email address.

Like many online business owners, Mike Bashi also found it extremely difficult to find a good web hosting service at the beginning of his career. However, he has been using only one service for all his business requirements since last six years. Talking about his new training website, he says, "Hostmonopoly is a great resource because it can help you build a website quickly without wasting time and money on sub standard hosting services. You would never have to change your service provider because you would be dealing with the best ".
