

Seal Beach, CA - September 15, 2012—For anyone who is trapped in an addiction, it can seem an insurmountable task to break free. They may feel as though all hope is lost and that they are caught in an inescapable trap. Often the thought of dealing with the issues of addiction can seem an overwhelming and impossible task to both those who suffer from addiction, as well as their families and friends. If an individual or their loved one is fighting addiction, this site can give them hope by pointing them in the right direction to finding a treatment facility. The site provides information for finding addiction help anywhere in the United States.

Available by telephone as well as online, Hopelinks can help everyone who visits the site to find providers of intervention, treatment, and recovery from all sorts of addictions, regardless of which state they reside in. While on their website, you can search for providers by state or zip code. Search results will find providers in each state, and the name and location of the provider, as well as a short synopsis of the treatments made available by each particular provider.

This is not just an online search engine for drug rehab facilities. Individuals can also call and reach a person that is knowledgeable about all aspects of addiction and its treatment. They will be glad to talk with everyone and learn about their particular circumstances and provide sufferers with the best referral given the specific details of their situation. Regardless of whether or not the caller is personally struggling with addiction, or if they are seeking help for a friend or family member, the person who answers the call will know how to direct the caller to the source that can best help them. Many people understandably give in to feelings of hopelessness when dealing with addiction. They feel lost, confused and do not know where to turn or even how to begin to seek help for themselves or their family or friends. Regardless of the type of addiction, the person you reach at this site can restore your hope by patiently providing recommendations for services within the caller's region.

It has often been said that the first step to solving any problem is to admit there is a problem. The helpful people at this site can help anyone and everyone begin the process and regain their health and hope for a better way of life by directing them to the local services that will help them break free from addiction.

About Hopelinks:

Hopelinks has been in business over ten years. Hopelinks.net is available to addicts and their families throughout the United States. Offering twenty-four hour assistance to those in need. In addition our interactive website that allows the user to identify professional addiction treatment providers in a specific community or region, utilizing the zip code directory, by clicking on 'drug treatment center' or by entering a zip code into the search box in the heading of each page.