RecruitMilitary, USAA Announce Alliance

Two military-focused organizations join forces to support those who honorably served

SAN ANTONIO – USAA and RecruitMilitary – two national military-focused organizations – have joined forces to strengthen support of those who have honorably served, providing about 419,000 RecruitMilitary members easier access to USAA's world-class insurance and financial services.

The agreement positions USAA as the exclusive provider of financial services, including insurance, banking, investments, brokerage services and financial guidance. The USAA Bank makes a contribution to RecruitMilitary with every new RecruitMilitary USAA Rewards™ World MasterCard® credit card account opened and each time an eligible purchase is made with the card.

“USAA recognizes the challenges veterans face when transitioning from uniform to the private sector,” said Nathan McKinley, USAA vice president of military affinity. “RecruitMilitary is a leader in guiding veterans to overcome these difficulties, and we are proud to team up with them to help support their programs.”

“I am delighted that RecruitMilitary has affiliated with USAA,” said Drew Myers, president and CEO of RecruitMilitary and former captain in the U.S. Marine Corps. “USAA has a long and excellent record of service to veterans, military members and their families. Our relationship will extend the reach of both of our organizations, enabling us to benefit those deserving men and women in more ways than ever before.”
