

FORGOTTEN FACES BOOK REVIEWS

Writer's Digest

(5/20/05) "This is a unique and intriguing history of immigrant America. Featuring beautiful photographs throughout, it is very well-researched and a valuable contribution to the literature."

Art & Antiques

Art and Antiques magazine (12/03)

Gary Collison, Editor of Markers, Journal for the Association of Gravestone Studies reviewed Forgotten Faces for A&A's December issue and stated: "The collection in Forgotten Faces is beautifully photographed. It is a stunning gallery, filled with haunting echoes of the past. ...an eloquent testimony about American life and an important addition to the study of both cemeteries and immigrant life in the U.S – an Ellis Island experience."

About

About.com – a part of The New York Times Company

Shelley Esaak, Art History Guide (03/08/05) "The first reference of its kind, Forgotten Faces is recommended reading for Americans with immigrant roots - most of us who claim United States citizenship. To describe the portraits as 'haunting' would be taking the easy adjective out. ... the children are especially forcible visions."

Smithsonian
Cooper-Hewitt, National Design Museum

Elizabeth Broman, Museum Reference Librarian" (2/05)

...very well organized and informative documentation. His observations are heartfelt, and his excitement is contagious. I was alternately charmed, saddened, and intrigued. ... fascinating wealth of images. I feel truly inspired."

Roots Television | Megan's Roots World

Megan Roots, Roots Television (11/26/06)

"I'm captivated by its topic. ... tombstones with photos of the dearly departed? They are fascinating. For those of us with fairly recent immigrants in our families, they sometimes provide the only image of an ancestor we'll ever see. ... I have to have this book."

TheUnion.com

The Union newspaper (7/17/04)

Kim Carrow of Odyssey Books, Book Reviewer for The Union wrote "Brimming with rare photographs and historical commentary, this book is captivating."

THE MIDWEST BOOK REVIEW

(3/06) FIVE STARS!

...provides an outstanding survey of memorial portraiture as its own art form.
...featured for its important cultural insights as well: California immigrant history comes to life in an outstanding visual and written survey of a unique art and memorial form which should not be missed.

KNCO NEWS TALK 830

ABC News/KNCO Radio (8/2/04)

Jim Kerr, News Director and Host of On the Town for ABC/KNCO radio described Forgotten Faces on air as "a fascinating book, beautifully presented."