

New Social Travel Marketplace Offers Travel Perks in Return for Contributions to Develop a Phone and Tablet App

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE – Tripbnb (www.tripbnb.com) the world's first online social travel marketplace is offering travel perks to people who might be interested in making a financial contribution that will help towards the development of a Phone and Tablet app. In return for contributions Tripbnb.com is offering travel perks through Indiegogo.com that varies according to the level of contribution.

Founder and CEO Wesley Baker, reports that the company is looking for people who share their vision for a better travel booking experience.

“We want to become the world’s most extensive lifestyle resource for unique travel accommodations that fall within a traveler’s budget and lifestyle needs.”

Baker reports that hundreds of hours and thousands of dollars have already been invested into the development and launch of Tripbnb.com. However to grow into a powerful travel resource, “we would like to develop a workable phone and tablet application to enable a better customer experience.”

Currently Tripbnb specializes in offering small to medium sized accommodations supplied by hotels, guest houses, bed and breakfast and private rental owners. Inventory could range from a condo in Phoenix to a castle in Scotland. Contributors will be helping the company reach out to customers and help accommodation be found by lifestyle enthusiasts.”

“To attract development funds, we have set contributions to as low as $10 and as high as $1,000. In return a contributor will receive perks that range from Tripbnb travel mugs to travel discounts and complimentary night stays,” he reports.

Baker reported that the website is currently in Beta mode and was launched during late summer of 2012.

“Like any new business, in order to gain awareness we need to keep promoting our services and attracting new customers,” says Baker. Tripbnb is poised to become the world's most efficient way to travel.

“We are offering extensive travel information like no other website on the market,” he said.
