Sage Leadership Association Announces Current Members

Sage Leadership Association's mission is to evolve leadership and promote strategic thinking.

Dallas, TX – October 29, 2012 – Sage Leadership Association (SLA), an association for professional knowledge firms committed to maintaining the highest ethical standards, is pleased to announce membership for the current association year that runs from September 2012-August 2013. Membership in the association is extended to all firms that have graduated from the Sage Leadership Academy, Upstream Academy's Blueprint for Excellence or attendees of partner development courses such as Sage Sales Academy, Sage Consulting Academy, Sage Marketing Academy and Firm of the Future.

As part of association membership, members are invited to participate in a fall and spring retreat. The retreats feature deep dives into topics relevant to members. An entire day is spent with one speaker, on one topic. This allows attendees to digest the information and develop plans to implement change and improvement at their firms.

"Being a part of the Sage Leadership Association allows us to challenge ourselves among our peers," said Tony Chiodo, Partner at Axis Global Partners and SLA board member.

SLA's fall retreat was held in Chicago earlier this month. The retreat featured a one-day workshop with Tim Williams, founder of The Ignition Group and author of Positioning for Professionals. The workshop led attendees through creating a differentiating strategy that yields a strongly focused team, a strongly appealing business model and ultimately a strong margin. The second day featured Joe Abraham who shared with the attendees how leveraging your entrepreneurial DNA can help you build a break-through company.

Congratulations to the following firms that are committed to maintaining the highest ethical standards and continued learning.
