Turquoise Home Decor Aficionados Encouraged to Visit and Contribute to New Site

Scottsdale, AZ – November 14, 2012

A brand new website dedicated to all the aspects of turquoise home décor went live worldwide this week. Turquoiseholiday.net has been launched and its goal is to help educate and inform amateur decorators and professional interior designers alike.

“A turquoise color scheme has become as popular in the world of interior design as the stone itself is in fashion,” said site spokesman Jeff Simon. “We wanted to create a place for those in love with a turquoise home décor to share their ideas. We also wanted to provide a place where turquoise aficionados can keep up to date on the latest trends in home decor.”

The new site covers all forms of turquoise home decor, including turquoise bedrooms, family rooms, bathrooms and all other rooms in between. The site also gives tips and explains how to incorporate a turquoise color scheme into any room in your home.

“Your site for all things turquoise isn’t just a clever tagline for our new site,” said Simon. “If you love decorating with turquoise in your home, you’ve found your new home on the web.”

The new easy-to-navigate site features entire pages dedicated to one room or area in the home. It also has a collection of detailed photos of rooms and homes utilizing a turquoise color scheme.

“When it comes to turquoise home decor,” said Simon, “you simply won’t find a site more comprehensive than ours anywhere on the web. Our team delivers the most up-to-date information on the styles and designs that we know our readers are searching for.”
