

Middle East and North Africa Intelligence Package

Strategic and Tactical Intelligence for security Risk Management

Introduction

The situation in the region remains fluid and volatile as newly revolutionized nations struggle to rebuild political and security infrastructures, while others continue to resist collapse. Such unpredictable instability creates the necessity for timely and accurate intelligence reports and assessments. With its primary operating hub based in the heart of the Middle East, Max Security Intelligence (MSI) provides critical intelligence information and assessments, integrating deep local knowledge and experience.

'Our goal is to enable and support your business continuity'

A comprehensive approach to risk management

Our approach to Intelligence risk management is broad. We provide comprehensive coverage, analysis, and consulting on any and all issues which may impact our clients' ability to conduct smooth business in the region. These issues include political turmoil, cultural and religious trends, bureaucratic hindrances, infrastructure failures, in addition to classic security threats.

Recognizing a gap in the commercial intelligence market, Max has developed Tactical Intelligence Capabilities, providing fast updates before and during on-ground events that may affect business continuity.

We are well aware of our client's needs and time restraints, emphasizing concise and prompt reporting with clear 'bottom lines' to allow for quick, proactive decision making.

Why Max?

Max Security has been providing risk mitigation solutions tailored to the complexities of the Middle East and other regions for over 15 years. Customers choose Max because of our client-oriented approach combined with our proven operational expertise. Our risk consultants and intelligence analysts are well trained veterans of the Israeli Defense Forces and Intelligence Agencies, who all have extensive experience. At Max we integrate the knowledge and experience of our ground operatives with expert analysis-providing our clients with a comprehensive security perspective.

Our Methodology

Max-Security Intelligence combines modern technology with proven intelligence gathering techniques in order to adapt to each of our operating environments. Our analysts triangulate and assess information from global and local press, social media and a reliable network of on ground sources in order to encompass a full view of events.

Products and Services Included in Our MENA Package

As the situation in the region grows more volatile and unpredictable, MSI has recognized the need for clients to receive rapid and brief intelligence updates on incidents which directly affect their operations on the ground, in addition to classic stability-focused intelligence reporting. Therefore, MSI's MENA Package includes different types of reports, clearly categorized by subject, location and immediate relevancy to on ground operations.

❖ Intelligence Reports

Reporting on security and stability related incidents and trends occurring in our clients' areas of operation. Each report includes an update on the event, an intelligence assessment, recommendations for best course of action, and a visual display of information provided using satellite imagery. ❖ Daily Summary

Issued every morning (Eastern Standard Time), the Daily Summary lists notable events impacting travel security and business continuity for each country in the region. Each event is supplemented with a short assessment or travel recommendation (where relevant). Click here to view a sample Daily Summary.

❖ Regional Intelligence Report (Bi-Weekly)

Every two weeks, MSI delivers an assessment covering countries in the region. These reports focus on the security and political consequences of recent events in order to provide an overall short term assessment of regional stability. Each report includes a summary of recent events as well as MSI's assessment.
