Roman explains the widespread popularity of Michael Fiore's Secret Survey:

"For a woman to know what her man is really thinking at any given time is a huge advantage," says Roman. "That information can be used not only to stop the lying, but also to fix all sorts of communication issues, to build intimacy and commitment and even to reignite the passion in a relationship that has cooled."

Fiore developed The Secret Survey after polling his large database of female followers and noticing alarming trends in the relationships problems they were experiencing. Fiore then turned to his male subscribers delving into the secret world of the male mind for answers.
