

Author Bio: Jack Morgan (a pen name) was born in Georgia in 1974. At the age of five, his parents decided to move south to Miami. Jack had many adventurous summers, either overseas, visiting his relatives in Honduras, or riding 4-wheelers in Georgia. Jack was inspired at very a young age to share the stories about his amazing experiences with his school pals. At the age of 17, Jack was yearning for more adventure. Therefore, he enlisted in the Army Reserve; he attended Boot Camp after his junior year of high school. After receiving his diploma, Jack enrolled in theatre classes at Miami Dade Community College.

Jack Morgan landed his first role on-stage, as Josh Johnson, in The Rimers of Eldritch by Landford Wilson.

That experience led Jack to pursue a career as an actor, which has still does to this day, 18 years later. But everyone has heard what it's like to be a "struggling" actor (waiting on tables) can relate to why Jack had to pursue other means of earning income. From 1999 to 2001, he returned to military service, this time joining the Navy as a Yeoman (office manager). Jack then spent the next ten years in the real estate and finance industry, working as a real estate agent, mortgage broker, and property appraiser. But when the economic recession of 2006 began, Jack returned to college to finish his Associate and Bachelor degrees, which opened the door for him to become a middle and high school English teacher.

Jack Morgan continues to work in education and in the film industry; he has an extensive resume of major motion picture, indie film, pilot and syndicated television shows and commercials, and has performed as a rhythm guitarist in an alternative rock band called Kukuyeah (music available on My Space). He resides in both Jacksonville and Miami, Florida, has a twelve year old son, who has already begun following his father's footsteps in acting.
