

Finest Gifts Will Still Arrive in Time for Christmas Morning, according to SilverTribe.com

Native American jewelry leader promises expedited shipping for holiday season

The online leader in Native American and Southwest art and jewelry is once again doing something big to help folks out during the holiday season. SilverTribe is offering amazing expedited shipping options to ensure that no one will be left out on Christmas morning.

“Who wants to deal with the hassle associated with going to the mall or retail stores at this point in the holiday season,” said SilverTribe spokesman Chris Anderson. “You can sit back, relax and rest easy because we will do all the hard work for you!”

In addition to marking down turquoise jewelry prices, SilverTribe has dramatically slashed prices on its entire inventory.

“It’s not too late to find great Christmas gift ideas,” said Anderson. “We want to take the stress and worry out of holiday shopping so you can focus on what’s most important during this special time of year.”

Turquoise jewelry is far from the only thing available. The finest bracelets, necklaces, earrings, belt buckles, bolos, watches and much more can be picked up, shipped out and placed under the tree with plenty of time to spare.

Customers are also encouraged to sign up for the site’s Preferred Member program. Preferred members will have the latest daily holiday deals and discounts delivered right to their inbox before anyone else.

“We understand the economic times can be tough for some, especially during this time of year,” said Anderson. “It’s important to us to provide you with a beautiful, timeless piece of art or jewelry that can be passed on for generations, but we also want to provide it at an affordable price.”
