Effective immediately, Kenney is responsible for the placement of travel nurse professionals for clients within the hospital, skilled nursing, outpatient, and home health sectors.

Kenney, an industry veteran with more than ten years of experience recruiting travel nurses, brings a broad range of knowledge into the new leadership role. "We are very pleased to have Jill move into this new management role," said Randy Holloran, President of Cirrus Medical Staffing. "We need people like Jill to help the organization meet the growth in the travel nursing sector that we're experiencing at a rapid rate. Her industry knowledge, experience, and track record of success are precisely what this key leadership position demands. “I’m very excited to take on this new role,” Kenney said. “It’s important to be with a company that really cares about its people, both internal and external.
