SUNMODO WON WASHINGTON MINORITY BUSINESS AWARD

VANCOUVER, Washington, Dec 28, 2012 — SunModo Corp, a leading solar PV racking and mounting solutions provider was awarded Southwest Washington Minority Business of the year Award on December 6 at the UW Minority Business of the Year Awards banquet at the Seattle Sheraton Hotel. More than 600 people including CEOs who run companies with combined revenues of more than $2 billion celebrated Washington's best and fastest growing minority-owned businesses.

According to the Minority Business of the Year Awards selection committee, "SunModo understands the business they are in and has developed innovative products that differentiate them in the market. Their patented solar panel mounting systems help business and home owners reduce both their energy costs and their carbon footprints."

"It has been a busy and exciting year. It is very encouraging to receive this recognition on behalf of our team." Tony Liu, President of SunModo said, "We are pleased that, through this award, we are able to let the entire Washington state know about Sunmodo's commitment to product innovation, customer service, and giving back to the community. We look forward to enjoying a fabulous and even more exciting 2013!"

Tony Liu, a former Intel mechanical engineer, founded Sunmodo in 2009 with the mission to provide the best value racking and mounting solutions for solar power systems. SunModo has established itself as a provider of cost effective and high quality solar mounting products. One of their most successful product lines is their patented EZ roof mount systems, which accounted for over 50% of their sales in 2011. Its competitive advantages include easier installation due to fewer parts and detailed guidelines, lower installation and maintenance costs, and the ability to quickly respond to the market's and customers' needs.

The UW Minority Business of the Year Awards, launched in 1999, recognize outstanding achievement by minorities in building and sustaining businesses in Washington State. This is the 14th anniversary of the awards program so Sunmodo is joining a distinguished group of businesses who are contributing to the economic vitality of Washington State.

About SUNMODO Corp.:

SunModo, a Washington based solar panel mounting company, was formed in 2009 with the mission of providing the best value solar racking and mounting solutions for solar power systems.

Since its inception, SunModo has primarily sold its products, including its Patented EZ Roof Mount product lines, into the marketplace through direct sales, word of mouth endorsements, and by responding to project bid solicitation. SunModo has quickly become known as the high quality provider of cost effective solar mounting products and its products are known for their quality, ease of installation, and affordability.
