LAC Group Introduces the R²S Portal to Support its On Demand Research Business

New York, NY — LAC Group is pleased to announce the release of its Rapid Research Solutions (R²S) portal. The portal allows LAC Group's on demand research clients to submit and track research requests, retrieve research results online and have access to all past requests.

The R²S portal will allow LAC Group to support the increasing number of law firm and corporate clients who are seeking outsourced support for their research function. "Besides filling staffing gaps, R²S answers our clients needs for competitive intelligence, business development, and market research support, as well as research to support legal/corporate matters and many other types of research," says Rob Corrao, COO of LAC Group.

"R²S is a natural outgrowth from the research work we were already doing for clients, but now we've formalized it as a packaged solution complete with experienced researchers, high quality resources and the R²S research portal. In today's market, businesses must have access to information that supports their strategic business goals. We believe we have the right mix of resources and great researchers to provide premiere search support to our law firm and corporate clients" says LAC Group's CEO, Deborah Schwarz.

Along with the introduction of the portal, LAC Group has increased the support provided to law firms with its recent hiring of law firm information and knowledge management consultant, Nina Platt, as well as additional researchers with law firm research backgrounds.

"It's been exciting to work on the launch of R²S, as we've heard from many clients that they see our service as a model for supporting research in the future. As a former library director, I reached a point where hiring one more research librarian didn't make practical sense. At that time, I looked for this type of support, but didn't find it. With the introduction of R²S, organizations now have someone to call upon when additional support is needed" says Platt.

LAC Group clients include 80 of the AmLaw 200, among other information-rich organizations.
