FisherBroyles names Snehal Patil to lead firm's new India Practice

FisherBroyles, LLP, a leading national law firm, has named Snehal Patil as a partner in the firm's Palo Alto office, where he will take leadership of the firm's new India Practice group.

"Today's business environment is truly global and our clients are taking notice of India's rapid economic growth trajectory," says FisherBroyles' co-founder and managing partner James Fisher II. "That's why FisherBroyles is proud to welcome Snehal Patil to guide our clients through such a vibrant and essential emerging marketplace."

Snehal Patil has practiced for more than a decade with top law firms in U.S. and India advising clients, government officials, and business executives on U.S.-India legal issues. Prior to law practice, Patil served as a top-ranked officer in India's prestigious Civil Services department. Civil Services is the backbone of the administrative machinery in India and is ultimately responsible for policy formulation, regulation and administration of the executive and foreign affairs of India. With Patil's Indian background and work experience with the Indian government, coupled with practice experience at a top Indian law firm, he is uniquely positioned to assist clients as they navigate the myriad challenges faced in doing business with and in India. Patil maintains strong networks in the legal, business and government sectors in U.S. and India, understands local ethos and cultural diversity, speaks local languages and is licensed to practice law in California and India.

"We live in a world of business without borders," says Patil, "where India will continue to hold prominence among world markets. FisherBroyles is among very few U.S. law firms that have a national presence, an efficient and cost-effective business model, and a top-notch team of experienced lawyers that is conducive to growing a robust India Practice." With its strong commitment to the India Practice, FisherBroyles is positioned to quickly become a major player among U.S. law firms representing clients in both inbound and outbound U.S.-India transactions.
