INTERNATIONAL FOOD PROTECTION TRAINING INSTITUTE UNVEILS NEW WEBSITE

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., April 23 — The International Food Protection Training Institute (IFPTI) today announced the launch of its fully redesigned website: www.ifpti.org.

The improved and updated website puts special emphasis on the institute's food protection training systems, curriculum, instructor development, and Fellowship program.

"The new design and layout makes it easier to register for courses, explore our Curriculum Framework, and read the latest news and announcements," said Joan Bowman, Vice President of External Affairs.

About the International Food Protection Training Institute

The International Food Protection Training Institute (IFPTI) is building and administering the training infrastructure for the nation's integrated food safety system.

IFPTI builds training systems, provides evidence-based curriculum, and delivers training for U.S. and international public- and private-sector food safety professionals that spans their entire careers.

IFPTI is a member of the Global Food Protection Institute, which is dedicated to enhancing public health by improving the safety of the world's food supply through training, knowledge production, and technology.

Financial support for the Training Institute is provided by a grant from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and through the generosity of the W.K. Kellogg Foundation.
