JW Marriott San Francisco Union Square Hotel Announces Addition of State-of-the-Art Air Filtration to Pacific Conference Center

Meetings at this hotel near Union Square benefit from the new feature, which offers purer, cleaner air to help boost productivity.

San Francisco, CA – Groups searching for the latest and greatest destination to conduct meetings and hold events should take note: The Pacific Conference Center recently received a state-of-the-art air filtration system. Located at the JW Marriott San Francisco Union Square, the Pacific Conference Center promises to deliver not only one of the best environments in the entire city for small business groups, but a space where groups can literally breathe easier.

This luxury hotel in San Francisco welcomes groups to experience the state of the art facility first hand. With a focus on green amenities and cutting edge technology, this new conference space is among the most high-tech in a city known for its futuristic bent.

Meeting attendees staying at this hotel near Union Square can benefit from the Pacific Conference Center's new PURE air technology. This advanced, patented purification system filters the conference center's air every 30 seconds, giving it a healthier and fresher quality. This purer air can give meeting attendees a boost in productivity and helps everyone stay more alert for longer periods of time.

Beyond the increased air quality, this San Francisco meeting space also boasts an impressive collection of high-tech features. The five meeting venues offers smart boards and writeable walls, which allow meeting attendees to let their imaginations expand beyond the bounds of a normal work space. LCD and LED projectors let big ideas be seen in larger-than-life fashion, while ceiling mounted speakers project crystal-clear innovations. And no state-of-the-art meeting space would be complete without high-speed wireless Internet access. Meeting spaces also offer elegance as well as functionality and feature touch panel, in-wall audio and visual controls, marble credenzas, soft carpets and sound absorbing rugs.

When guests conclude their meeting, they can retire to one of the premier San Francisco Union Square hotels. Boutique-style guest rooms feature welcomed amenities such as LCD HD televisions and Bose radio systems, as well as elegant décor, plush beds and personal butler service.

If guests need something to eat after an engaging meeting, they can stop by the renowned Level III Restaurant and Bar, serving perfectly cooked dishes that span the breadth of California cuisine and unique drinks dreamt up by the hotel's skilled mixologists.

Guests staying at the JW Marriott San Francisco Union Square Hotel should experience the next evolution in meetings and book their next event at the Pacific Conference Center, now with the new PURE air system. For information, visit www.marriott.com/SFOJW.
