

CgoXchange is a division of Sirius Business Solutions, Inc. and headquartered in the heart of California's Silicon Valley.

CgoXchange has been developed as a catalyst for moving small airfreight forwarders to e-freight. Its first application will be automating the ad hoc pricing process.

CgoXchange intends to provide customizable digital control panels to small forwarders, shippers and trucking companies. From digital control panels subscribers can launch all air cargo related applications, even those from other developers. Applications will have mobile versions, where appropriate.

CgoXchange offers an alternative to airline mandates as the method for transforming the air cargo industry to e-freight.

CgoXchange is lead by Craig Ruess who began his air cargo carrier working weight and balance on freighters at JFK in 1977. Craig has held cargo management positions with Northwest Airlines, Air California, Frontier Airlines and Cathay Pacific Airways.

Sirius Business Solutions, Inc, is a digital marketing agency assisting businesses that promote themselves via websites, email, social media, banner adds, search engine marketing and press releases. Sirius Business was incorporated in 2003.
