New York, NY, Sep 3, 2013: 123Greetings.com has added new expressions for Rosh Hashanah 2013 that are deliciously topped with cheerful music, warm messages and attractive animations. This festival, also known as the Jewish New Year, is celebrated by Jews across the world. Various traditions and symbolic foods form part of the festivity.

The colorful ecards for Rosh Hashanah, at 123Greetings.com, reflect Jewish beliefs and culture. Expressions are carefully designed featuring the emotions and attributes associated with the day. The significance of apple and honey, sounding of the shofar and lighting of candles, are beautifully captured in the ecards. Expressions for the festival also include religious blessings and shalom. Relationships too are kept under consideration. While there are a number of general festival wishes that almost anyone can send to anyone, there are also specific ones targeted towards friends and family.

Arvind Kajaria, Founder of 123Greetings.com, says, "L' Shanah Tovah to all the Jews. Rosh Hashanah marks a new year with renewed beginnings and is celebrated with much enthusiasm across the world. Many traditions form a part of this celebration. Greeting cards have remained an integral element for a long time and our ecards will ensure that this tradition carries on to the new digital era."
