About Gregg Hannah

I spent nearly 42 years in the Royal Canadian Navy retiring as a Commander. The last 12 years of my career were spent teaching university, five years at the undergraduate level at the Royal Military College of Canada in Kingston, Ontario, and seven years at the graduate level at the Canadian Forces College in Toronto, Ontario. When I retired I wanted to continue helping people “learn-to-learn” so I founded my own company – Transformational Learning Solutions.

I am a board certified Master Practitioner of Neuro-Linguistic Programming, Neuro-Linguistic Programming coaching, Time Line Therapy™, and hypnotherapy, as well as a board certified Hypnotherapist trainer and a certified Language and Behaviour Profile® Consultant/Trainer. I combine this knowledge with the wealth of knowledge I acquired in my naval service on how people successfully interact, solve problems, and use critical thinking in day to day activities and in challenging situations. I apply and share it all this by offering one-on-one coaching, seminars, workshops and course for individuals and by conducting workshops, seminars, and events, to assist organizations and business professionals in the areas of: Leadership Development, Ethics and Value Alignment, Effective Communication, Powerful Presentations, Team Building, Stress Reduction, Overcoming Anxiety, and Building Self-Confidence to name a few.
