Smart Kids with Learning Disabilities Announces the 2014 Fred J. Epstein Youth Achievement Award

Nominations are now open for the 2014 Fred J. Epstein Youth Achievement Award. This $1,000 award recognizes the strengths and accomplishments of young people with learning disabilities and ADHD. It will be given to a student 19 or younger who has demonstrated initiative, talent and determination resulting in a notable accomplishment in any field—including art, music, science, math, athletics or community service. Honorable Mentions will also be awarded.

The award will be presented at the organization's annual benefit on the evening of Friday, April 25, 2014 at the Hyatt Regency Greenwich in Old Greenwich, Connecticut. Transportation and hotel accommodations will be provided for the winning student and his/her parents.

The winner of the 2013 Fred J. Epstein Youth Achievement Award was Mackinzie Hamilton from Providence, Utah. At 19, she was a student at Utah State University majoring in journalism and communications, as well as Assistant News Director of Utah Public Radio, an NPR station where she reported, produced, and hosted a popular news program. Kinzie's fierce drive and strong work ethic have helped her deal with the challenges posed by her ADHD. Kinzie has found her niche in broadcast journalism, where, as she notes, "the deadlines are concrete and unforgiving. At 12:30 you'll be on live so you better be ready, because there's no re-record button."

A Special Recognition Award was presented to Alexandra Sandlin of Vienna, VA. Sky Burke of Holbrook, NY received a Junior Achievement Award. Honorable Mentions were awarded to students from Montgomery, MD, Battle Creek, NE, Weston, CT, Bowie, MD, Sioux City, IA and New Hope, PA.

The application on the reverse side of this announcement may be submitted by parents, teachers, coaches, mentors or students themselves; or an application may be downloaded
