Medical practices can spend months researching, selecting and implementing a new EMR. Each practice has unique requirements and should choose an EMR that satisfies their needs.

Practices want their existing patient data incorporated into the new EMR system from day one. To accomplish this, data from the old system must be extracted and converted to the new EMR's format.

ELLKAY specializes in extracting, analyzing and converting existing clinical data from one EMR system to another. We do not sell EMR systems; we partner with EMR vendors and offer them cutting-edge extraction and conversion services.
